

Duncan wears a hard safety helmet so he doesn't get hurt if he bumps his head.

There's a lamp on his helmet so that he can see in the darkest parts of the mine.

Shuggie wears a leather headpiece with a lamp fixed to it so that he can see where he's going in the dark.

Shuggie has a soft padded leather collar, attached to strong chains, so that he can pull very, very hard without hurting himself.

Shuggie is very strong. He can pull seven hutches of shale.

Duncan wears an old jacket and baggy trousers.

Duncan likes cheese sandwiches and cold tea.

Shuggie likes carrots and cabbages.

Duncan was a pony driver and Shuggie was his pit pony.

They worked together in Philpstoun No.1 shale mine during the 1940's.

Shuggie's hooves are protected by hard-wearing steel horseshoes.

Duncan's boots have steel caps to protect his toes, and steel tacks in the soles to give him grip.
